BUT WON'T AID GREEKS

Allies Move to Secure Armistice But Turks Planning to Squeeze Smyrna

Constantinople, Sept. 5.—The allies appear to be agreed that it is necessary for them to land naval and infantry forces in Asiatic Turkey for the protection of their nationals and to maintain order.

From the way the operations are being conducted there is no indication that the Turks will permit the Greeks time for a breathing spell. An order of the day issued by Mustafa Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, which has just been received here, after congratulating the Turkish army on its spirit and sacrifices, concluded: "Your next move must be Smyrna."

With the arrival of reinforcements from Greece, the Greeks are confident that they will be able to dispute the advance of the Turks.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The French government today received through the British embassy a note from the British government requesting consideration of the possibility of taking steps to bring about an armistice between the Greeks and the Turks. The French replied in a note sent by the foreign office tonight.

Although the terms of the notes exchanged were not disclosed, it is inferred from the promptness of the French reply that an agreement between the two governments will rapidly be reached.

Smyrna, Sept. 5.—The American and allied consuls have held a conference on board the Iron Duke, the British flagship here and formulated measures for protecting their various nationals and removing the refugees in the event of the fall of Smyrna. The British high commissioner told the Greek military chiefs that the Greek army must by all means hold its position for 10 days so as to permit the dispatch of allied troops.

Consul-General Horton of the United States announced that he had telegraphed to Constantinople for American naval units.

The Greek authorities have assured the allied representatives that the Greek army can hold out in the city of Smyrna and its suburbs for several months, but that it would not be responsible for the hinterland.

TWELVE DEAD IN BROOKLYN FROM POISON WHISKEY

Six Died Today Including Two Women

SOURCE NOT DISCOVERED

All of the Deaths Have Occurred In One Small Section Known As Red Hook District

New York, Sept. 6.—Six more deaths attributed to artificial whiskey and to wood alcohol poisoning in the Red Hook section in Brooklyn this week occurred today. Two of the victims are women. This makes a total of 12 since Sunday.

Four persons died yesterday from drinking the poisonous liquor that is being sold in the Red Hook district and one is dying in Kings County Hospital. Two died Monday night.

All day yesterday police of the Hamilton avenue station scoured the neighborhood for some trace of the source of the deadly liquor that is apparently having a widespread distribution in the homes and among the families of the workmen of the vicinity. One policeman traced the sale of a pint bottle that he believed had caused the death of a woman in Wyckham street to a small grocery store at 149 Conover street. Here the police arrested the proprietor and his clerk, charged them both with homicide and locked them up in the Hamilton avenue station.

The deaths following one upon another and being confined to a radius of not more than five blocks from what the police believe to be the central distributing point caused intense excitement and indignation in the neighborhood.

"HUGGER" CAPTURED BY DISGUISED POLICE CHIEF

Breaks out of Amorous Embrace and Walloped Bold Masher on the Jaw

Highland Falls, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Chief of police Fred Christoff of Highland Falls is not in the habit of wearing women's clothes, but he decided it was the only way to catch an elusive soldier flit with caveman tactics who had been the subject of many complaints made by girls and women of this little summer resort near West Point.

The women declared that some man in uniform repeatedly followed them when they were alone and seduced, hugged and kissed them, dashing away when they screamed for aid.

In silk shirt waist, sport skirt and silk stockings, with high laced shoes, a veil and all those things, Chief Christoff tripped alone about the shadiest lanes in Highland Falls, presently he was grabbed around the waist by a burly arm clad in khaki and kisses were pressed upon him.

The Chief protested in lady-like voice that he was a married woman, but this only aggravated the soldier's objection then the Chief hauled off and walloped the bold masher on the jaw, laying low Corporal Albert Hoff of West Point, a regular army man.

Today Judge Nelson held Hoff in $1,000 bail on the double charge of disorderly conduct and annoying women. The military authorities will deal with him later.

The Chief then got back into his own uniform.
